FEMALE BEAUTY.

FEMALE beauty is an attribute divine. In the beginning woman was made beautiful to look upon, and doubtless Eve had sufficient pride and pardonable vanity to desire the preservation of her charms for Adam's admiration. A like desire is one of the inherited virtues of her sex. "A thing of beauty is a joy forever," and the woman who would not make all possible effort to not only preserve the full measure of beauty by nature allotted her, but also strive to remove such blemishes as detract therefrom, has lost the most charming attribute of her sex.

Unfortunately the law of heredity, in conjunction with the follies and dissipations of modern civilization, has left its mark upon multitudes of women, upon each of whom some spot or blemish mars or destroys an otherwise charming and beautiful personality. Science, however, has ever kept pace with folly, and the last generation has seen the development of a profession having the power to neutralize both the follies and their hereditary effects. To-day science can remove any and every blemish from the skin, and give to it the clear, soft, velvety condition of perfect, healthy childhood; can change a flabby, shrunken bust to the full, hard, beautiful contour of perfect womanhood, and can convert the dry, lustreless, scrawny hair of a diseased scalp into beautiful, silken, fluffy tresses.

CELEBRATED FRENCH BEAUTIES
(PATRONS)

The first great exemplifier of this noble art was the "Temple of Beauty" of Paris. Paris has ever been celebrated for its beautiful women, and its "Temple of Beauty" is noted throughout the civilized world for the noble work it has performed in the preservation of the beauty of its daughters. The last decade has seen the rapid development of the art and the equally rapid extension of our practice until now it is equally well known in Paris, London, Vienna, Berlin and New York, and "Temple of Beauty" is now synonymous the world over with all that tends to preserve and enhance female physical loveliness.

Our reputation is now so widely and firmly established that proof of that fact seems superfluous. We refer to many members of the royalty and nobility of Great Britain and Europe, to many society woman in New York, London, Paris, Vienna and Berlin, and to members of the artistic professions the world over, for evidence of the beneficent results of our work.

The great metropolitan cities of the world are, however, but a part of the whole, and there may be multitudes of American women unfamiliar with the possibilities of our art and the extent of our reputation. For the information of such this little brochure is largely designed, and for such also our numerous branch establishments in America will be found a great convenience.

Our professional rooms are always sacred to the sex and man never enters therein. Madame Le Moyne is the professional head. All of her assistants are ladies selected with much care from among our own graduates, and our patrons can be assured of absolute privacy and strict professional confidence. The great reputation of which we are so justly proud, has not been gained by betraying professional secrets, but, on the contrary, by guarding and keeping them inviolate.

In our Studios ladies can procure

THE MOST SCIENTIFIC TREATMENT

OF ALL

BLEMISHES OR AILMENTS

OF THE

SKIN, SCALP AND HAIR.

TREATMENT OF THE SKIN relates to the neck, face, bust, hands and arms, and includes every description of massage and manicure.

TREATMENT OF THE HAIR pertains to shampooing, dressing, singeing, waving (the celebrated Marcel wave), etc.

TREATMENT OF THE SCALP covers all diseases which affect its general tone and healthy condition, and the strength, growth, fibre, texture and color of the hair.

For successful treatment in any of the foregoing, ladies may come to us with assurance and confidence.

Every profession has its quota of charlatans and quacks and ours is no exception to the rule. By such, labored efforts to convince the public of the depth of the science and the profound wisdom of the individual quack in question, are intended to cover the superficiality of their treatments and the noxiousness of the nostrums used. As a matter of fact, the preservation of natural charms, the enlarging and beautifying of the bust, purging the scalp of disease and the removal of superficial blemishes, such as wrinkles, freckles, moles, pimples, tan, discolorations, superfluous hair, etc., etc., while scientific, are all comparatively simple. The groundwork is a scientific knowledge of the construction of the skin and this must be supplemented by expert manipulation and the use of medically pure tonics, lotions and medicaments. A few weeks of properly directed study and practice in our school department will qualify any bright woman to successfully treat any diseases of the skin, scalp and hair, and ladies possessing our diploma need have no fear of the qualifications of any professional. The tonics, lotions, etc., used by us are compounded from formulas of our own; the concentrated results of years of study and research and our own secrets, they can be thoroughly relied upon for their purity and efficacy. The success of many of our treatments is absolutely dependent upon their use, and our customers are warned against being imposed upon by imitations.

ANATOMY OF THE HUMAN SKIN.

Every person knows what the skin is—its external appearance and its general properties; but there are many who may not be aware of its peculiar and wonderful construction, its compound character, and its manifold uses.

In perfect health it is gifted with exquisite sensibility, and while it possesses the softness of velvet and exhibits the delicate hues of the lily and the rose, it is, nevertheless, gifted with extraordinary strength and power of resisting external injury, and is not only capable of repairing, but of actually renewing itself.

The skin, though apparently a single membrane, is composed of three distinct layers or membranes, each of which has special duties to perform. The exterior of these, or that one which immediately meets the eye, is called the cuticle epidermis, or scarf skin. It is of uneven thickness, in some parts being extremely thin and delicate, and in others, particularly those exposed to friction, thicker and harder; in this respect being accommodated to the nature of the part it covers. Throughout its whole surface it is thickly pervaded with minute pores, to permit the escape of the perspiration and other exhalations from the body. Its reparation and renewal are carried on at its under surface, while its damaged, worn out, and useless portions are thrown off in the form of whitish dust or minute flakes or scales.

Immediately under the cuticle, and resting on the cutis, is the rete mucosum, or mucous network. It is a thin layer of soft, pulpy matter, of fibrous character, and reticular form, and appears to be the seat of the color of the skin, with the hue of which it always coincides. Beneath the rete mucosum, and forming the third, last in succession inwards, and principal tegumentary covering of the body, is the cutis derma, or true skin. It is a highly sensitive, vascular, gelatinous texture of a very complex structure. It is of a whitish color and fibrous, and appears to be made up of an irregular species of network. Closer examination shows it to be composed of condensed cellular tissue, and to be very thickly supplied with absorbent vessels, and with arteries, veins and nerves.

It is here that the minute capillaries of the arteries spread themselves out and, by means of the ducts of the sudorific glands or follicles, exhale the peculiar secretions which we call perspiration. The importance of the perspiratory functions of the skin cannot be overestimated, nor can too much care be taken to keep them in a state of healthy integrity. Their use is to preserve the softness and sensibility of the skin, to maintain the temperature of the body at a uniform standard, and to remove from the system a number of compounds noxious to life.

Regular and healthy perspiration, more particularly that usual form of it termed “insensible perspiration,” is not merely in the highest degree conducive to health, but absolutely necessary to its very existence. Obstructed or suspended perspiration is one of the most common causes of catarrhs (colds), bronchitis, coughs, etc. The sudorific glands and the perspiration pores invade every portion of the skin, and are exceedingly numerous. On the palm of the hand the orifices of these pores are faintly perceptible to the naked eye in hot weather, and are distinctly so with a lens of small magnifying power.

The perspiration contains about one per cent. of solid animal and saline matter, the latter consisting chiefly of lactic acid and salts of soda and ammonia, the rest being water, with variable quantities of carbonic acid, nitrogen, etc. Such is the general structure of the human skin, so complicated and yet so perfect, so delicate and yet so useful.

DERMATOLOGY.

It should be understood that it is not within our province to treat all diseases of the skin, but rather do we confine our practice to those milder forms which, while they mar the beauty, cause little physical discomfort and have perhaps been endured by the victim as inevitable, because ignorant of the ease of cure.

(PATRONS)

The family physician has no time for the scientific external treatment necessary for successful results. Such diseases or blemishes as can be treated internally through the blood are within his province ; but there his duties end and ours begin. Our practice is confined to external hygienic manipulation and the application of pure scientifically prepared external remedies. Into this field the physician does not care to enter, and in it we stand pre-eminent.

COMPLEXION PURIFICATION.

The New York Temple of Beauty is the only establishment of its kind in this country in which the skin is treated in a thoroughly scientific and skillful manner.

There are 150,000 sweat glands in the face, through the mouths or pores of which healthy, beneficent Nature forces out carbonic acid and poisonous and noxious excretions. The closing or clogging of these pores prevents this salutiferous action and causes blemishes such as pimples, black-heads, acne, liver spots, blotches and concomitant evils.

Our unique massage treatments are very efficacious in such cases and are strictly hygienic. They open and cleanse the pores, allay irritation, heal the skin and restore it to the natural velvety pinkness of youth. By accelerating the respiratory circulation of the glands they give tone and strength to weak, inactive nerve tissues of the face and completely eradicate wrinkles, leaving the face firm, full and youthful.

Tan, freckles and eczema are removed and cured by special treatments peculiar to our establishment.

THE BUST,

Many ladies are either inherently deficient in their bust or maternal cares have destroyed its proportion and beauty.

Whatsoever the cause, a continuance of the defect is unnecessary. Come to us and have a little patience and we will guarantee to develop, enlarge and beautify it until its firm, full contour shall be the fullness of rich, ripe womanhood—the envy and admiration of your friends.

We do not perform miracles, but we can and we do, renew the youth and beauty of thousands of women by nature adorned but, by ignorance, marred. Our methods, while simple, are thoroughly scientific and are endorsed by the medical fraternities of both continents. The French ladies are noted for their beauty, chic and style. The complexion of English ladies, noted the world over for its freshness and bloom, has been falsely ascribed to the peculiar climate of the British Isles. Its true explanation can be found in the care which English ladies have bestowed upon their complexions; and the good results first achieved by their own efforts have been increased and intensified by their adoption of the advantages offered by the common sense methods of the “Temple of Beauty.”

Royalty and nobility are among our most enthusiastic patrons, and a glance at some of the faces reproduced in these pages will give ample evidence of the justification for their enthusiasm.

We cannot impress too fully upon the American women unfamiliar with our work, that we can radically improve and beautify the person while increasing the general tone of the system. No paints, powders or other superficial aids are ever used by us, and the lady who does use them is advertising her blemishes to the world. Paint and powder have ceased to find a place on the modern lady's toilet table. The wiser course is adopted of having defects eradicated and the skin clarified. Under our treatment the skin is brought back to the velvety texture and rosy color of perfect maidenhood, and ladies are cordially invited to call at any of our establishments and satisfy themselves of the wonderful merits of our work.

THE SCALP.

The debilitation of the cuticle is a most fruitful source of mischief.

In every part of the cutaneous surface, as elsewhere in the system, vital processes are constantly going forward, requiring for their motive power a portion of that mysterious principle of life which we term vital force. But some portions of the body require far more of this vital force than others, because the processes occurring in their provinces are more complicated and laborious than in others, and there is no other considerable portion of the cutaneous surface that can compare with the scalp in the extent and variety of the labor required of it.

Were we to examine the surface of the scalp with a powerful lens, we should find it very thickly sown with minute punctures, which represent the orifices of the perspiratory ducts, more than three thousand of them terminating in every square inch of superficial measurement. It is likewise peculiarly rich in sebaceous glandula, which furnish the lubricating and softening fluid to the external surface of the scalp.

When we reflect that every one of this vast number of minute channels is lined by a continuation of the cuticle, and that millions upon millions of cells demand a constant supply of vital force, we must understand that the scalp is really a very busy portion of the system. Nor is this all. Every square inch of the scalp has to propagate and sustain from five to seven hundred hairs. Adding this responsibility to the former, we are able to form some idea of the magnitude of the perpetual task that this portion of the cutaneous surface is called upon to perform. Not only must the supply of vital force be adequate and continuous, but the state of the surface must be such that every operation connected with the functions of the scalp may go forward with the vigor contemplated in the design of Nature.

That these conditions are rarely fulfilled will be apparent, but the resulting disorders are too numerous to enter into. Each sufferer is familiar with his or her own particular disease and all of them are readily amenable to our treatments. Any lady can have a healthy and clean scalp, if she will but put herself under our care or use our lotions systematically.

THE HAIR.

The hair given us by Nature to protect the head, as well as to add to the beauty of woman, is subject to many diseases. Carelessness, neglect and ignorance of how to preserve this most beautiful ornament is in many cases the cause. Before we consider these diseases, let us study the manner in which Nature creates and nourishes this delicate organ. The root is that part which is implanted in the skin, and has at its extremity a bulbous enlargement, which is whiter in color and softer in texture than the shaft. This is lodged in the follicular involution of the epidermis, called the hair follicle or bulb.

This little follicle or sac is supplied with a bloodvessel and nerve, from which the shaft derives its life, growth, and color. Just above the follicle, on either side of the shaft, are two little glands that secrete an oily substance, which serves to keep the hair glossy, and prevents dust and other excrementitious matter from forming a crust around the shaft and thus retard its growth.

The scalp in which these hair follicles are implanted, so to speak, is the same as the skin which covers and protects our whole body. Diseases of the hair are numerous, but we only refer to those that are met with most commonly. The hair may grow too long or too thick. It may be defective in its growth, or may fall off prematurely from various causes, or in the natural course of things, as from old age. It may change its color, too, under a great variety of circumstances, and at nearly every age. Old age, the winter of life, naturally brings the "frosted locks," but they frequently appear also upon the heads of younger persons. Strong mental emotions, such as fear, grief, and sorrow, may bring a bleaching of the hair in a brief period, or even suddenly.

In view of these considerations, it is plain that attention to the scalp on the part of grown persons can hardly be amiss, and may often be abundantly rewarded. It may be observed at the outset that various conditions of the hair and scalp, referring often to simple mechanical obstruction of the pores or to the immediate consequences of over-stimulation, or other ill-treatment, sometimes indicate more serious difficulties, as will be apparent from a perusal of the article on the scalp. Here a cleansing of the scalp will not alone suffice to remove the unpleasant symptoms. This condition will require a special treatment. The conditions alluded to are, briefly, irritation—indicated by a constant itching of the scalp, more or less severe—a moist exudation from the surface, dandruff, and scurvy accumulations, a faded and lifeless appearance of the hair, and falling out of the same.

In the treatment of these or any other conditions causing a loss of hair, there is but one rational plan to be observed. First, discover the cause of the difficulty, and then remove it. By this means alone can we ever hope to be successful in accomplishing the desired result. Cleanliness—and we mean absolute cleanliness when we say this—must be observed under all circumstances. In point of fact it is necessary to cleanse the head just as often as the other portions of the body. We could never understand why the great majority of persons pay so little attention to this important point. Even the most fastidious in regard to their personal habits of neatness are often most lax in this. The freer the style, and the more loose, of dressing the hair, the better.

Treatments are given for the Hair in this Establishment by the most approved hygienic methods. Ladies whose hair is deficient in growth and vitality cannot fail to be pleased with the quick and satisfactory results obtained. These treatments produce luxuriant, soft, glossy hair, prevent it from falling off, and turning prematurely grey. Dandruff, loss of color, split or dry hair, is quickly and permanently cured.

FACES BEAUTIFIED.

Why be disfigured and humiliated by any unsightly blemishes? Why suffer with pimples, blackheads, freckles, tan, wrinkles or any of the facial evils to which the skin is heir? Come to us and we will cure you speedily and harmlessly.

If your ailments are aggravated and need more heroic treatment, we will scientifically cause the outside membrane of the skin to wither, die and harmlessly flake off, leaving a new, pink skin of infantile purity. Is not such a transformation a consummation devoutly to be wished? Come to us and we will procure the transformation, providing you with a new face of matchless purity and new beauty.

Is your neck thin and scrawny? Come to us and we will make it full, plump and attractive. Is your face sallow, pale, pasty or muddy? Come to us and we will make it healthy and bright. We do nature's work and it is simple when you know how. No artificial means, no deleterious nostrums used. We open the innumerable clogged pores of the face, allowing nature to exude the poisons, and we then cleanse, heal and restore to a healthy condition with our scientific remedies. We attack the root of the disease and effect a radical cure.

MANICURING.

Treatment in this Art is given in the latest improved American style, and is considered indispensable to a lady's toilet. It promotes a healthy growth to the finger nails, greatly improves and beautifies the shape, color and texture, and removes all cutaneous growths surrounding the nails. When carefully treated, deformed and ugly nails are made symmetrical and beautiful. The vulgar habit of nail-biting positively cured.

WORDS OF WISDOM.

The New York Temple of Beauty is replete with every convenience for the external treatment of hair, skin and scalp.

A reasonable length of time is a pre-requisite to successful treatment, and ladies should come to us prepared to exercise patience ; especially if their ailments are aggravated.

There are no physicians connected with this establishment and none are necessary. The work done is purely hygienic and external, aided by electricity, electro-vibration, ultra-violet rays, steaming, massage, eliminating tonics, lotions, etc.

Every ailment and blemish of the skin, scalp, hair, face, neck, arms, hands and bust can be as successfully treated as by the most eminent physician or surgeon ; and hair-dressing, shampooing, singeing, brushing and head massaging can be as satisfactorily performed as in any establishment on earth.

The celebrated Marcel wave for the hair is one of our specialties.

If you will carefully peruse this little booklet, word for word, you must be impressed with the fact that it is a serious matter to abuse Nature, and that a healthy skin is a pre-requisite to a beautiful complexion.

FACIAL MASSAGE

WHY NOT BE BEAUTIFUL.

It is the duty of every woman to be as beautiful as possible ; as beautiful as her Creator intended. Do you desire to attain and retain that pinnacle ? Then you must eat sparingly and keep the bowels and stomach properly regulated ; by frequent bathing keep the body's seven million pores well open and the skin in a thoroughly healthy condition ; take plenty of exercise and plenty of sleep in well-ventilated rooms ; cultivate kindly thoughts and congenial associates, and come to us for the rest. Madame Forsythe and her assistants will then be able to do their part to your thorough satisfaction.

This is the only establishment that successfully removes the outside skin, technically known as scarf skin, from the face, neck and shoulders. This operation successfully and harmlessly performed results in the growth of a new, beautiful and spotless skin.

The names of our patrons are never divulged without their assent, and then only in special cases. Ladies never see one another when being treated. Commendatory letters are often received and thankfully, but they are considered strictly confidential. Hence we never publish testimonials.

ENDORSED BY PHYSICIANS.

Every business and profession has its hoard of charlatans and parasites, and in spite of the damage they cause it is often difficult for the uninitiated to distinguish between the good and bad. It will assist the reader to know that our methods are those now approved in the high class skin hospitals in Great Britain, France, Germany and America. Every intelligent physician endorses these treatments.

It is quite a habit now for society ladies to come to us before attending special social functions at which they desire to look particularly charming, and again, for recuperation, after particularly fatiguing entertainments. Paints and powders are now never used by well-bred gentlewomen.

NATURE OFTEN ABUSED.

When Nature is abused and disease results, she makes a vigorous effort to throw off the morbid matter. Her efforts, however heroic, are useless unless seconded by the victim.

What causes pimples? Clogging of the pores. The little plug in the centre of the pimple is called a blackhead, grub or comedone. Our medicaments and massage are the only perfectly effective treatments known to thoroughly eradicate these and other blemishes.

The great secret of a pure, rosy complexion is to keep the pores open. The impurities will then exude through them.

Through the 7,000,000 pores the face and body is constantly breathing oxygen and expelling poisonous matter when the skin is in a healthy condition. Close every pore and death would instantly ensue.

Each pore is about one quarter of an inch in length. There are 1,750,000 inches of pores; that is, 145,833 feet or 48,600 yards; nearly 28 miles of this drainage in a human body.

Thirty-three ounces of invisible perspiration pass from the body in 24 hours of time.

EDUCATION BY MAIL.

Some of the most successful educational institutions of the day are conducted upon the correspondence plan of instruction, and thousands of American men and women are to-day earning large incomes in professions which they have mastered in this manner. Realizing the great advantages of such methods of teaching, if successfully applied, to women too far removed to visit the Temple of Beauty, we adopted the correspondence idea with some hesitancy; but the eminent success which attended our efforts more than justified the experiment. We are now teaching a constantly growing class, by the aid of over thirty photographic illustrations taken from living models in the New York Temple of Beauty, with carefully prepared instructions, sent through the mails. This method has the advantage of qualifying pupils at points far distant from the centres and remote from competition, and any lady acquiring her professional education in this way may be sure of securing an independent income. Of course the possible income to be derived from the practice of the profession necessarily depends upon the enterprise of the practitioner and the extent and character of the community, but any community of a thousand inhabitants has potential practice enough to handsomely remunerate any enterprising woman.

USEFUL MODERN APPLIANCES.

Every appliance of value, Oriental, Japanese, German, French and English, is in daily use at the studios. Electric batteries, with electric roller attachments for massaging the face, neck and bust—electric hair brush, etc.—are scientific, beneficial and popular.

The Electro-Vibrator machine is excellent, and one of the greatest inventions of the age. It gives massage scientifically, producing 6,000 vibrations per minute, and may be applied to any part of the face or body with the most delicate or vigorous effects. It equalizes and increases the circulation, strengthens the tissues, and relaxes nervous and muscular tension; thus relieving the cause, it stops all pains, such as headaches, rheumatism, neuralgia, etc.

The electrical machine for drying the hair after a shampoo is a luxury to ladies; it dries the hair very quickly. Only a few minutes is required for a complete shampoo.

Madame Forsythe, the eminent English specialist, has undoubtedly treated more princesses, countesses, duchesses, and other titled and society ladies personally during her ten years' practice in London, than all the other specialists combined. American ladies will be pleased to meet and consult freely with her at our New York studios.
